Valentines day

Valentine's day is on the 14th of February. It's all about celebrating the people you love in your life. You can exchange gifts like chocolate to show your appreciation. Pop down to the library to send a candy cane to someone you appreciate for 50p with a personalised message delivered on a day of your choice.
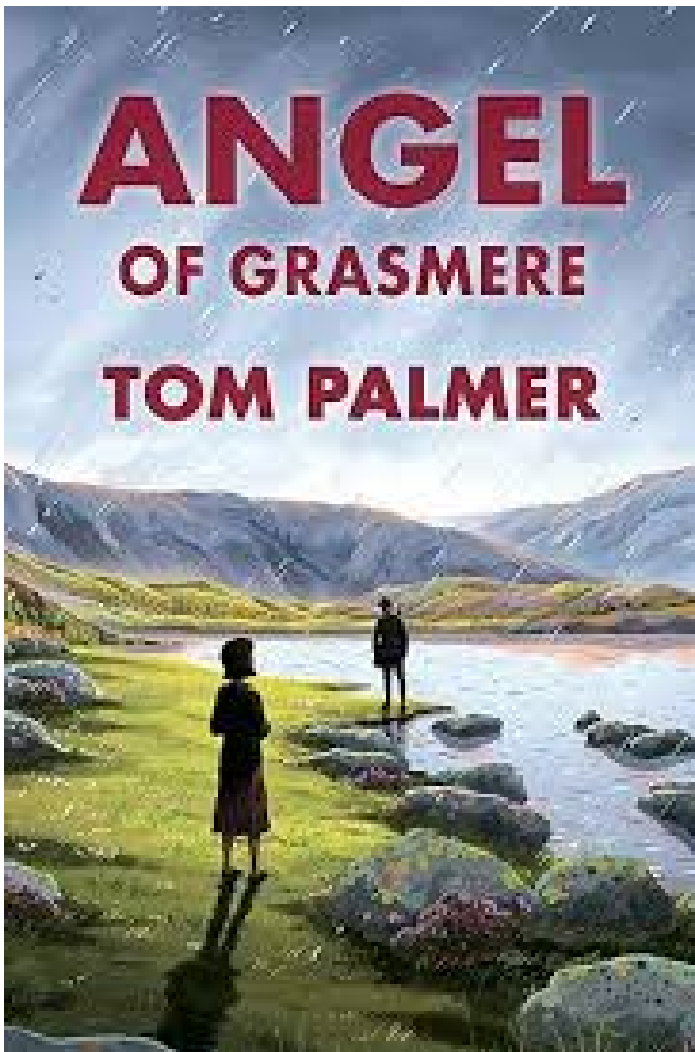

Yorkshire Pudding Day

On the 2nd of February, we celebrate the greatest food in existence, the Yorkshire Pudding (If you couldn't tell, I love Yorkshire puddings). People often celebrate by, well, eating them! By the time this comes out, Yorkshire Pudding Day will have passed, but it doesn't mean you can't eat lots of Yorkshires over the month! Or the year! Or in my case, your entire life!

This February's monthly topic:
World cancer day

Recognised on the 3rd February, World Cancer Day is all about raising awareness about cancer. Led by the Union for International Cancer Control, it attacks misinformation, raises awareness and reduces stigma. Lots of activities are organised like fun runs, marathons and people participate in community events. To support world cancer day yourself, donate to a charity or volunteer.

Book of the month:

This book is in the 2025 York Book Awards shortlist.

Tarn is a sad and lonely child since her brother died. She is feeling pulled apart from her one true friend Peter, a farmer's son, because evacuee Eric has come to stay. She needs to learn that you can make friends anywhere, even if you don't believe it.

Meanwhile, lonely and filled with memories from Dunkirk "the man" can only hide but soon becoming bored and restless he decides to make a name for himself by doing good deeds. When Peter's dad has an accident, the man, now nicknamed the "Angel of Grasmere" risks everything to get help.
