Star Wars day

On Sunday 4th of May it will be Star Wars Day. It is a play on the words of 'May the force be with you' - instead it is 'May the 4th be with you'! This is a day for Star Wars fans to commemorate the Star Wars franchise and everything related to it. Special events are held and announcements are made about the Star Wars franchise and related things.

VE Day 80th Anniversary

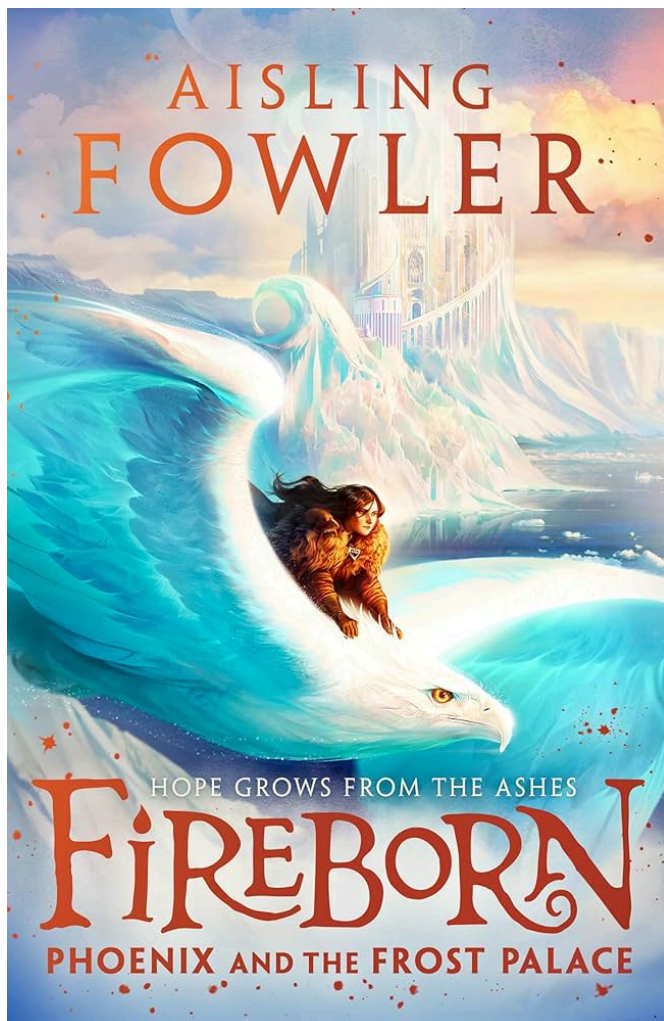

On the 7th of May 1945, Japan surrendered to the allies, followed by Germany, ending WWII. Japan was in a dilapidated state and Germany was having significant military setbacks. This led to the occupation of Japan and Germany by the allies, creating East and West Germany (occupied by the United States, Great Britain, France, and the Soviet Union, and with it the Berlin Wall). On Wednesday 7th of May, it will be the 80th anniversary of VE day.

This April's monthly topic:

GCSEs

GCSEs are coming up so parts of the library will need to be used for revision. This means that staying quiet in the conservatory is more important than ever. Please make sure that you are quiet in the conservatory and everywhere on Tranquil Tuesday. GCSE's are very important and need a lot of studying, so be respectful and do not annoy anyone studying. Deliberately interrupting people preparing will be treated seriously.

Book of the month:
